

In palliative care we trust

Erasmus+ Project Death Education for Palliative Psychology - DE4PP

Standing in between life and death

Life volatile as blowball of dandelion clock

It is hard to say goodbye to people you loved and passed away

There is a hope
in palliative care

Death is inevitable but memories about loved ones live in us

During the Erasmus+ Project, we had an opportunity to see how palliative care look like. No we see that theory is theory but in practical use it requires many skills to be good at. We saw patients: in various mental and physical conditions - it showed us wide variety of cases that carer should be prepared for. Some visits were cheerful, some - really moving and emotional. We feel great respect to all carers and their work and appreciation to imput, the imput of palliative care in aim to make people life better at their final stage. :-)
